IN THIS REPORT

Dataset integrity & method · 51 record-level assessments · top-ten phone tests · separate FCA / entity / NCSA questions · confirmation and refutation rules

Source basis: ListForge Order 54 export and Apollo Ready Order 54 export. Filenames and row counts are described in the report; CSV URL and LinkedIn fields are not independently verified.

1. Dataset integrity check

- Files: ListForge_Order_54.csv - ListForge_Order_54.csv (1).csv (51 data rows, 40 columns) and Apollo_Ready_Order_54 - Apollo_Ready_Order_54.csv (51 data rows, 11 columns). Despite “Order_54” in the filenames, each contains 51 records. The experiment protocol was supplied in the prompt; there was no separate protocol .txt among the files in the linked Eric/ folder.
- ListForge supplies no record ID; LF-01-LF-51 below are stable, 1-based row IDs in source-file order.
- All 51 ListForge rows have a business name, city/state, street address, phone, website, Google Maps URL, rating/review count, BusinessStatus=OPERATIONAL, Category=restaurant, and LastReviewDate. This is listing evidence, not independent confirmation that the business or phone is live.
- LastReviewDate is relative text, ranges from 2 weeks ago to a year ago, and the export supplies no capture timestamp. Counts: 2 weeks (1), 3 weeks (3), 1 month (4), 2 months (12), 3 months (11), 4 months (3), 5 months (7), 6 months (5), 7 months (2), 8 months (1), 9 months (1), 1 year (1). It is a business-activity signal, not a contact/phone freshness guarantee.
- Contact coverage: exactly 16 rows have a named contact/title (14 distinct people); 35 do not. There are 12 ContactPhone values, 16 ContactLinkedIn URLs and 25 CompanyLinkedIn URLs. A missing LinkedIn URL is not evidence of a bad record. Literal Found values in social URL fields are presence flags, not profile URLs. Chef’s Table (LF-12/LF-28), Taste Kitchen (LF-20/LF-50), and Hotel ZaZa outlets (LF-15/LF-34) have different addresses and/or main phones; they are related-location records, not proven duplicates.
- Other enrichment coverage: Founded is populated on 18 rows, Industry on 23, EmployeeCount on 25 and RevenueRange on 17. SocialProfileCount is a count, not proof of a current contact. Some company-size/industry values appear parent/platform-level, notably LF-23 and LF-31.
- RecommendedOutreach: Phone Recommended (36), Email + Social (14), Email Recommended (1). These are dataset recommendations, not observed channel performance.
- Email discipline: every row has Email1, commonly a generic info@ alias; other Email columns contain generic role-mailbox candidates. There is no verification/deliverability status. ScrapedEmail1 is populated on 15 rows and matches Apollo Email in those rows; “scraped” does not mean verified, deliverable, or tied to a buyer.
- Apollo has 51 rows, all labeled Stage=Warm. Both files agree on company, main phone and website for all 51; the 16 supplied contact names/titles also match. Provenance independence is unknown: this is cross-export consistency, not phone/contact ground truth.
- Positive enrichment anomaly: LF-31 Ostioneria 59 points to order.toastttab.com; Email1=info@order.toastttab.com, CompanyLinkedIn is Toast Inc, Industry is Software Development, EmployeeCount is 7,766 and RevenueRange is 5B. This supports a platform-attribution risk. It does not by itself prove the listed local phone is wrong.
- Eleven ContactPhone values have area codes different from the main phone: LF-04, 12, 15, 28, 34, 41, 42, 43, 45, 47 and 49 (LF-41 is toll-free). Treat these as routing questions—not evidence of a wrong number or anyone’s physical location.
- No external web research or calls were performed. The actual offer/product and ICP were not provided.

2. Research methodology used

- Compared all 40 ListForge fields with all 11 Apollo fields. Matches are cross-export consistency only; provenance independence is unknown. Used supplied files as primary evidence; no external company/contact pages or phone outcomes were used. The actual offer/ICP is unspecified, so role-fit judgments assume a general restaurant-relevant B2B offer and remain conditional.
- FCA (First-Call Actionability): GREEN means a first call to the listed business/location is reasonable from the local listing and phone fields. YELLOW means the call is still reasonable but should qualify a material entity, parent/chain/platform, outlet or routing ambiguity. RED requires positive evidence that the number is wrong/disconnected or belongs to another entity; none is present here. Missing enrichment alone is not RED; YELLOW is not a do-not-call verdict.

- NCSA (Named-Contact Sequence Actionability): GREEN means a supplied named person, role and route are plausibly appropriate for the assumed offer. GREEN is intentionally rare by design: it requires affirmative support for identity, current role, offer relevance and a suitable route—not just a connection, senior title or working email. YELLOW labels separately identify route, role, scope and liveness uncertainty. RED requires a positive material named-role/channel mismatch for the assumed offer. Where no person is named, use INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE; absence is not evidence the account is bad. LF-11 has an email but no mapped person/role and remains insufficient.
- SEQ is the conservative named-contact/revenue-critical sequence class: it generally follows NCSA, except LF-31 is SEQ RED for positive entity/platform contamination even though NCSA is INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE. For phone-first account qualification, use FCA; do not collapse the two dimensions into one unconditional score.
- A ContactPhone area-code mismatch sets NCSA to at least YELLOW while the person-route remains unconfirmed. Area codes may reflect corporate/direct, mobile, ported or VoIP routing and do not prove geography or error.
- LastReviewDate is binned Low (≤ 3 months), Medium (4–6 months), High (≥ 7 months); it measures only relative business-review activity, not contact or phone freshness. It may lower NCSA confidence but does not by itself change the classification. A recent date does not prove actionability; an old date does not prove a bad record.
- Confidence describes evidence strength, not a calibrated call-connect probability: A = strong evidence; B = good/minor uncertainty; C = meaningful uncertainty; D = weak/insufficient evidence.

3. Frozen prediction table

FCA: 35 GREEN / 16 YELLOW / 0 RED. YELLOW records are still call candidates; qualify the entity or route. NCSA: 1 GREEN / 13 YELLOW / 2 RED / 35 INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE. SEQ: 1 GREEN / 47 YELLOW / 3 RED. LF-47 is NCSA YELLOW because its ContactPhone has a different area code from the main line. LF-31 is NCSA INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE but SEQ RED on entity contamination. RED triggers are recorded per row.

6. What counts as confirmation or refutation

Score FCA, NCSA, entity, role, contact route and liveness separately.

- FCA: supported only when the listed number reaches the intended business/location or establishes a route there. Wrong/disconnected number or wrong entity refutes. No answer/voicemail is inconclusive.
- Entity: record whether the respondent confirms the named outlet, operating entity and relevant local/central purchasing boundary. Related locations are not duplicates merely because contact details overlap. LF-31's Toast fields are platform-enrichment evidence, not proof its local phone is invalid.
- NCSA: supported only when the named person is current, in the stated role, relevant to the assumed offer and reachable by a suitable route. For INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE rows, a phone-identified owner/GM may make a sequence possible; it does not verify email deliverability. Confirming a mismatched ContactPhone reaches the named person resolves routing only, not role or offer fit.
- SEQ: LF-23 and LF-45 are RED for the named-person sequence under the assumed general restaurant-B2B offer; a valid local phone/F&B or GM route does not make those person routes appropriate. LF-31 is SEQ RED due entity/platform contamination even though its local phone may be a valid verification call.
- LastReviewDate: use only as a business-activity signal. A High band is not proof of closure or a departed contact. Neither recent activity nor a phone connection alone proves actionability.
- Predeclared FCA falsification expectation: among the 35 FCA GREEN records, count only directly confirmed wrong/disconnected/wrong-entity numbers as refutations; exclude no answer/voicemail. Fewer than 5 refutations (<15%) would indicate low phone-field failure but little FCA discrimination by itself; 5-15 would be informative to investigate; more than 15 (>43%) would indicate material phone-data unreliability. Also compare resolved routing/error rates in FCA GREEN versus YELLOW; similar rates would mean the split did not discriminate. These are rough, precommitted interpretation bands, not statistical significance or product validation.
- A phone call cannot verify revenue, employee count, LinkedIn attribution or email deliverability. Do not ask Eric to establish these by phone. Do not count "connected" alone as actionability or "no answer" as invalidity.
